MILEPOST 31

Seattle's Most Boring Exhibit

Deep below the streets of Seattle, a giant tunneling machine is digging a tunnel to replace the Alaskan Way Viaduct, the elevated highway that spans Seattle's waterfront. Milepost 31, the SR 99 Tunnel Project's information center in Pioneer Square, provides an inside look at this massive project and highlights the history of the Pioneer Square neighborhood. The exhibit features soil samples, tunneling equipment, and a 10-foot-long model of Bertha, the tunneling machine. Please come visit this free exhibit.

Tuesday – Saturday, 11am - 5pm,
until 8pm on First Thursday.
